

You watch them being portrayed on the big screen in movies such as Oceans Eleven, Point Break, The Thomas Crown Affair, and Snatch. Super Thieves or Burglars who are at the top of their game. Some portrayed as good guys and some as bad guys. In the movies these burglars are masters at plotting, preparing, planning, and carrying out the worlds most notorious crimes. While there are a few great super thieves out in the real world who steal priceless art and jewels, most burglars are not that good, not that skilled, and often very predictable, and while some burglars make careers out of it and make a good living off of it like in the 1987 movie Burglar, the majority get caught and spend many years behind bars. In the real world, far away from the movie screen, a burglary causes not only financial distress to a family but it also takes a huge emotional toll as well. The feeling of being someone else's target and of not being secure in ones own home are very difficult feelings to overcome. That is why now more than ever you need this book.
