

A picture book that takes the intimidating prospect of starting school and transforms it into an appealing adventure. The more five-year-old Daniel hears about kindergarten, the more he wants nothing to do with it. His preschool days are filled with swimming lessons, library time, and fun with Grandma, Mom, and his baby sister -- just the way he likes it. As the big first day approaches, Daniel, full of jitters, meets the excitement of the adults around him with skepticism. Vivid, playful illustrations help propel the reader along as each of Daniels fears is overcome. With good-natured humor and sympathy, this entertaining book allays this oh-so-common fear of change. Ages 4-6.
