Lotus has just received the final ring piercings to complete her vagina corset and fully intends to lace up her girl parts until she gets her life back together. But the ex-lover who introduced her to crystal meth is released early from jail, and Lotus knows she's at risk to go right back into the hellhole she escaped two years ago if she can't stay away. Despite the help of her friends, her rehab doctors, and Ellora, who has used piercings and needle play to keep her out of her addiction, when Tristan steps back into her life, Lotus isn't sure she'll be able to resist him, or if she wants to. 20,000 words/75 pages Excerpt from Pricks and Needles: Tristan straightened my elbow. "You ready? Not too late." But it was. I was gone as soon as I chose to stay with him, to be a part of his life after I knew he used. I nodded and watched him move the needle close to my arm. It glinted from the colors of the window as he pricked my skin, drawing a little blood in, and then he shoved the plunger down. Everything went blank for a moment as ice blew through my veins, wiping out the room. I sucked in a breath, bending over, dimly aware of Tristan tossing the needle and clutching me. I gasped, feeling panicked, as everything sped up, my heart, my breathing, every movement magnified. Then it all trickled down again, like the sparkle baton I had as a girl, a stick full of water where you turned it to make the glitter and stars float back to the bottom. I grabbed Tristan's hand and found myself laughing. I was coming back into the world, and it was all so bright! His face was so crisp and clear, like high-def on max. "I have so wanted to do this on meth. I mean, more than I've ever wanted anything." He yanked at my sweater and bra, tearing them over my head. Everything moved so fast, with such intensity. The fabric on my face, his mouth, wet on my breasts. Amped was the perfect word, it was all turned up, loud and fierce. Something ripped and we laughed for hours before he got back to my skirt, unzipping and tugging it down. His tongue on my clit was like an orgasm as soon as it touched. My ears filled with sound and I recognized my voice, crying his name, shouting over my own words, a cacophony of syllables and moans and ohmygod ohmygod every touch was a vibration. When he entered me, I felt like a vessel that had been filled, expanding and accepting more and more of him until I was as big as the room, wide and open and rocking on air.
