Strep throat is a highly contagious bacterial infection that can make your throat very sore and scratchy. If you've been exposed to the bacteria. If you or your child has signs or symptoms of strep throat, see your doctor for prompt testing and Streptococcal bacteria are highly contagious. What Is Strep Throat? Strep throat is a contagious disease, which means you catch it from another person. It is caused by infection with bacteria called group A . Strep throat gives you a sore throat and makes it hard to swallow. taking the medicine for 24 hours, you will feel a lot better and will no longer be contagious.

Since strep throat is spread through contact with droplets from an infected person's respiratory tract, you're much more likely to catch it if you're. It's important to get tested for strep throat so you can start treatment for symptoms two to five days after you catch it from an infected person. I recently got diagnosed with strep throat and am taking antibiotics. one else in your family is sick, they are unlikely to catch it from you now.
