

Excerpt from What All the Worlds a-Seeking: Or the Vital Law of True Life, True There are two reasons the author has for putting forth this little volume: he feels that the time is, as it always has been, ripe for it; and second, his soul has ever longed to express itself upon this endless theme. It therefore comes from the heart - the basis of his belief that it will reach the heart. Preface To Fifteenth Thousand. It is impossible for one in a single volume, or perhaps in a number of volumes, to reach the exact needs of every reader. It is always a source of gratitude, as well as of inspiration for better and more earnest work in the future, for one to know that the truths that have been and that are so valuable and so vital to him he has succeeded in presenting in a manner such that they prove likewise of value to others. The author is most grateful for the good, kind words that have come so generously from so many hundreds of readers of this simple little volume from all parts of the world. He is also grateful to that large company of people who have been so good as to put the book into the hands of so many others.
